CALL FOR PAPERS

The Faculty of Theology of the Pontifical Gregorian University intends to take up the call addressed to the whole Church convened in a Synod by proposing an International Conference on the theme "Theology Responding to the Challenge of Synodality" (April 27-29, 2023).

Envisioning a path that listens to the experiences arising from the synodal process and compares the different visions related to "synodality," the Conference aims to explore the conditions of possibility for a regenerated theology, with the goal of seeking a synodal method in theology.

In light of this same synodal spirit, the Conference Scientific Committee intends to provide a space for more participants to listen and share, beyond the conference speakers. To this end, scholars are invited to submit their papers for possible future publication in the Conference Proceedings. Submissions should clearly present a question or topic related to following thematic areas:

1. Imagining a synodal theology
2. A theology from and for synodality
3. Synodality and transdisciplinarity
4. Synodality and Ecumenical Dialogue

Poster session: during the days of the Conference, authors of accepted papers will also have the opportunity to display a poster on their topic and thus make it known to other participants and discuss it with them already during the Congress. Instructions for composing the poster will be sent out only to the authors of the accepted papers.

Please look up the draft programme

Instructions: a text in WORD, in Italian or English, no longer than 2000 characters including spaces (excluding title and bibliography).
